> It is important to understanding that those at the JFK assassination in the train-yard (a partially controlled monitored restricted area) recognizing and identifying each other in confessions and death bed testimony were in fac demonstrably there at the time as has proven by the nuetral and expert facial recognition experts most notably Lois Gison and photographic image workers like Robert Groden, close co-workers of General Edward Lansdale who recognized him with the Tramps, and these figure have documents and autobiographies explaining their motives and documents that closely relate to the events such as financial and meeting requests and meeting notes and business documents of the CIA front companies and records for the souped up green station wagon Holt and others drove from Grace Ranch Arizona to the Train-yard in then they posed as Hobos until they were caught by Lee Bowers Jr. Where these people shot from (behind the fence at the top of the Grassy Knoll concealed from the throngs of crowds on the other side of the fence) is where all at the shooting witnesses ran to as the place the shots came from and gun powder smoke was seen at. These experts have also spotted "Badge Man" a person dressed as a police officer likely discharging a weapon pointed at Kennedy.

The Killing of a President; the complete photographic record of the JFK assassination, the conspiracy and the cover-up. by Robert J Groden: (Author)

The assassination of John F. Kennedy remains the greatest unsolved mystery in American political history. Though hundreds of books have been written on this topic, an in-depth photographic analysis has never before been published. In this compelling new book, The Killing of a President: The Complete Photographic Record of the JFK Assassination, the Conspiracy, and the Cover-up, readers can examine a comprehensive collection of all the latest research and relevant evidence in the Kennedy case. This authoritative volume contains more than 650 photographs, maps, drawings, and documents that depict and explain the events surrounding the assassination and the cover-up, including a complete analysis of the medical, ballistics, and acoustics evidence; the story of Lee Harvey Oswald; new information on the "grassy knoll" controversy; the Warren Commission proceedings; the details of Jim Garrison's investigation; and a discussion of the House Assassination Committee hearings in the late 1970s. Many of the book's photographs, documents, and data have never before been published because of their suppression by the government or their previous unavailability. The images have been carefully reproduced and many have been optically enhanced by using the latest technology to clarify heretofore unseen detail in the photographs. This step-by-step chronology and comprehensive visual analysis form a revealing case study for anyone interested in the JFK assassination. The publication of The Killing of a President is certain to be unsettling and controversial because it permits the public an unencumbered view of the photographic evidence. While some of the photographs in this book are shocking and disturbing, their appearance here is crucial to showing that a conspiracy did exist to kill John Kennedy. The Killing of a President is a powerful and important book that attempts to unlock the secrets of the conspiracy - one that the American government has supported for the last thirty years. - Groden book description

Those like George H.W. Bush, LBJ, Richard Nixon, Allen Dulles, and others were of the Government and CIA and thus gained control of the narrative. Most have fallen in line with the Government narrative until historians biographers and forensic experts gained closer looks and more confessions and and conducted the wider sweep for fact (as Mark Lane, Gary Shaw, and Pen Jones did) that the Warren Commission was unwilling to do and even escaped from their duty to do.

Ted Gunderson asserted William Colby was shot in the head. Gunderson spoke of glass knives used by the CIA and other techniques and DeCamp quoted Colby as saying (and I paraphrase here) If you do the hit right they will never know it was the CIA, and 2) If you are a risk to something that the CIA thinks can not be disclosed and you are about to disclose or reveal the program doing so will endanger your life.

Ted Gunderson and General Sosbee and Ed Donegan and others have asserted Hispanic biker gangs, Satanic groups, drug dealers, and others work in close conjunction with the CIA and assasinated Sonny Bono and many others. At times Gunderson complained of "surveillances" used on him as others have of local thugs from various pools of them that might be drawn from. These thugs have clear support from the police and the police give them instructions while deny being linked to them.

Preface - I Am a Patsy! “I am a patsy!”

These last words of my friend, Lee Harvey Oswald, still ring in my ears, and make me think of the terrible injustice inflicted on the memory of this supposed “assassin.” -George DeMohrenschildt

This is the rare manuscript of a book George DeMohrenschildt was writing at the time of his death in March 1977 - right before he was scheduled to appear before the House Committee on Assassinations. In it, DeMohrenschildt gives many details about his activities and associations, and perhaps most significantly, an insight into how he perceived his relationship with Lee Harvey Oswald.

The facts and information in this manuscript differ from, and occasionally boldly contradict, statements made by DeMohrenschildt to several government agencies at the time of the assassination. While there is no longer any way to confront DeMohrenschildt with the discrepancies, the manuscript nevertheless sheds light on at least how George DeMohrenschildt, himself, viewed those facts, and how he wanted the public record to read about himself and Oswald.

Chauncey Marvin Holt interviewed near the Train-yard Observation Tower Lee Bowers Jr. was in while walking to the Wooded Fence about the Grassy Knoll several individuals have been wrongly accused of having been the tramps possibly some of them deserve to be accused of that or something else and I specifically referred to someone like Frank Sturgis who incidentally ran afoul of the law for something else and ended up in prison Howard hunt that was falsely identified as as the person that I claimed to be you see the there’s a lot of mystery surrounding the assassination I felt that my information is from a point of view that would probably if if I am believed it would lay to rest these ideas that Jack Ruby and Lee Harvey Oswald were just nuts that passed in the night and that I have felt I always felt a sympathy for Oswald (holding back tears) and I don’t I just don’t think that’s right and he would be or his children should be stuck with that sick stigmatism that’s all

SELF-PORTRAIT OF A SCOUNDREL · A MEMOIR OF SPOOKS, HOODS AND THE HIDDEN ELITE.

October 2013 Released for the first time 16 years after his death, this startling autobiography by one of the so-called "three tramps" from the John F. Kennedy assassination reveals the details of Chauncey Marvin Holt's many claims. Much mystery and suspicion still swirls around that fateful day in November 1963, and theories abound in nearly every form of media. But one of the major mysteries revolves around the three men spotted and later arrested in Dealey Plaza. Holt's controversial confession to being one of the three tramps has a history of its own, and in his own words he delves into his unique and wild background and life. From his United States Air Force service during Pearl Harbor to his associations with the mob and the CIA, Holt discusses his experiences and encounters in great detail.

How I Edward Paul Donegan became a JFK researcher, experienced retaliation, and discovered others

St John Hunt has spent years researching the deathbed confession his father E. Howard Hunt provided to him as Karyn Holt-Harcourt told the story of her father (also taped and researched) of Chauncey Marvin Holt.

I and Edward Paul Donegan and the son of a lesser known but equally important figure than these two's parents and the hiddean identity and role of the Donegan's (I am the last living one) is how I became a Kennedy Assassination Researcher.

Like many most of whom have written books on a treason conspiracy with the Bush family at its epicenter I am a mulit-generational party interested through my family history.

Other people research for other reasons. A quest for justice not believing the Warren Commission, or who were in government and didn't believe what the Government was saying (like Mark Lane the NY Campaign Manager for JFK) or the press (Penn Jones Jr.) who could not let the horror of the assassination go unsolved.

Many are the elves of history and academia toiling away are questions in knowledge where holes in information exists or the information may be incorrect or can be elaborated on and there is so many interesting and important parts of history to be researched.

The retaliation began before I found my families role. In fact it was the retaliation that led me to ask why I was being retaliated against a question many "targeted" people assuring powerful figures are smearing them for no reason on behalf as best as can be guessed some unfortunate connection to an oil company (in some cases) or some globalist or historical figure in some part of the family.

That said I think I have become an important researcher because I have worked for decades and around the clock with the same late start some of these other second generation ignored witnesses have had. The Holt book Self Potrait oncly came out in print and in full in 2014 to little fanfare though it has much proof in its appendix that serves to prove true was has already been proved true about the CIA and its role in global illegal operations.

So what I had wanted to write about, Natural Law, the science of Nature and epestimia by hypothesis testing and debate and logic became a back burner to a book about police harassment of me in misdemeanor cases the government started and then finished taking me to court for conflicts they generated. That was The US v EPD and later some other names leading into its most recent title The Great Treason and another book by me Pillory suggesting the pillory of me with false allegations against me as witness intimidation.

In the course of that work I found allies tied to me one named Jen Moore and other conspiracy theorists called Truthers or Super Conspiracy Theorists about the Family Jewels Program. That led to the two books one bio on Ted Gunderson and another one called Written by The RIght Hand of right hand operatives to CIA goals such as Prouty was.

Like the Ted Gunderon bio I have also worked on Wiliam Cooper works and believe he was correct a Deep State exists and it should be feared. I can not operate as the State in its actions. It hides behind thugs or by entrappment forcing those it destest into fights it can then prosecute the person for fighting, etc.,

Not a Knights Tale. I am not fighting for Her Ladyship. I am not winning for her or losing jousting matches for her. None of that exists. Nor am I anti cop nor pro cop. I have been pro-cop but now and suspicious of them all of them. So I am at this moment anti-cop. Or actually not at all. While I do not trust cops I am for the rule of law. I wish they were too, they are not, most of those I intellectually team with now find them politicaly motivated dangerous figures working for powerful figures of the NWO.

I try to leave all that asside but I don not trust them. I consider myelf like the IDFILES site and trust no one and suggest nobody else place themselves under police control if they can avoid doing so. Don't be arrested? Avoid detnetion? that is basic lawyer ing anyway. Stay out of trouble and then if you get in trouble stay out of jail. Nice and simple.

INT. DR. JAFFE'S OFFICE - DAY A successful-looking doctor sits behind a desk in a well-appointed office. He's looking at someone off-camera.

DR. JAFFE Uh, but you have no actual medical training?

ERIN (off) No. I have kids. Learned a lot right there. I've seen nurses give my son a throat culture. I mean what is it - you stick a giant Qtip down their throat and wait. Or a urine analysis, with that dipstick that tells you whether or not the white count is high...

DR. JAFFE Yes, I understand. ERIN (off) And, I mean, I'm great with people. Of course, you'd have to observe me to know for sure, but trust me on that one. I'm extremely fast learner. I mean, you show me what to do in a lab once, and I've got it down. He nods. Now we see who he is talking to:

ERIN BROCKOVICH. How to describe her? A beauty queen would come to mind - which, in fact, she was. Tall in a mini skirt, legs crossed, tight top, beautiful - but clearly from a social class and geographic orientation whose standards for displaying beauty are not based on subtlety.

ERIN (CONT'D) ...for instance, at one point I wanted to be an engineer, so I was working at Fleuer Engineers and Constructors in Irvine. I fell madly in love with geology.

DR. JAFFE Geology?

ERIN I learned how to read maps. I love maps. (MORE) Did you know our present system for map-making dates back to the ancient Greeks in like the third century B.C.?

DR. JAFFE No. ERIN Anyway, I was at the company and - this is interesting, actually - I helped Ramish Ginatra design, as an assistant, part of the Alaskan pipeline...

DR. JAFFE Uh-huh. ERIN ..But I lost that job because my son came down with the Chicken Pox and 104 temperature and my ex-husband was useless, so..ya know...But what I want to tell you is I, uh .. I had always wanted to go to medical school. That was my first interest really...but then I, you know, got married..had a kid too young and..that kind of blew it for me..

Jaffe stares at her. DR. JAFFE Uh-huh. ERIN (beat, looks around) This is a really nice office. Jaffe looks down at her resume, trying to figure a polite route. DR. JAFFE Thanks. (looks up at her) Look.... Beat. By Erin's expression, she knows what's coming.

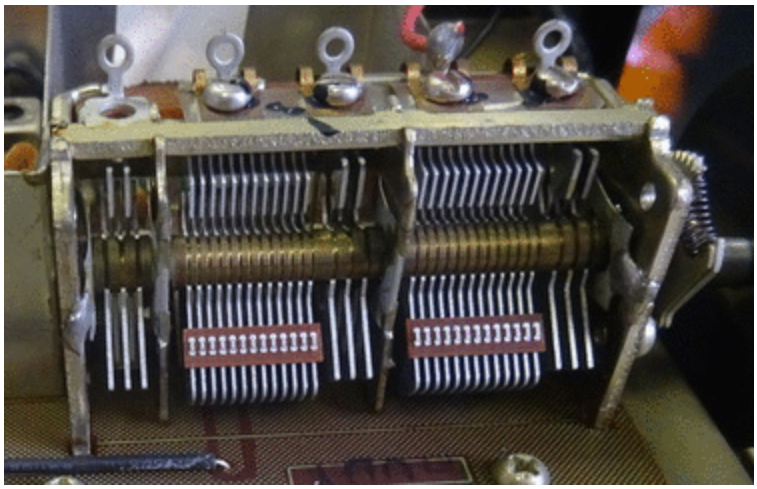
The Hobo withe the nosebleed and klenex and radio crystals and radio in the paper bag



Changing the dial setting outside the radio case changed the way the capacitor plates aligned with each other thus what the setting fo the capacitor side of he see saw was.

The Capacitor is something Benjamin Franklin experimented with a great deal. If one metal plate accumulates a charge from electrons received from the wire to which it is attached .. then IF a plate is near enough to it and the field of the charge reaches a nearby plate positive charges will be sucked into the nearby plate. There is no short in the positive and negative plates of metal so what is left is a like a battery with two pieces of metal. How much a surface of a nearby plate is across from a charged plate is how much energy the battery like device has. A spark plug is something like this when the two charged pieces of metal is so different the electrons will jump across of the carbonated gas seperating the metal surfaces. Like with a radio circuie the spark plug metal nodes are charged by a coil of magnetic field collapsping.

[Ed DOnegan] A wave simulator can be a box used to hold water and rotated (like a see saw) to title to one side to tilt to the other side. Radio frequency devices using a variable capacitor work like this. Metal plates hold charges, electrons. Energy will build up on them. Magnetic fields hold energy. When a field collpases back into its wire that created it the wird sends the energy to the plates in the capacitor. They will send the energy back to the magneitic field. This is the see saw affect of a radio wave being generated. When you turned a dial on an old radio the plates fo the capacitor were changing position so a different level of charge would store in them (sort like how long that end of the wave box is) thus how long the wave form would be would change. Crystlas were a better system. They when electrified held to certain exact frequencies are were a prefered way to set an exact channel in a digital way.

(From Holt self-portrait) Montoya exhibited considerable knowledge about communication equipment and questioned me about the type of radio that I was carrying. He even advanced the theory, after hearing the background noise on the inactive channel, that a microphone was possibly stuck in the open position, permitting us to hear the background noises. I assumed, since I had delivered a forged pilot's license to him, that he had developed these communication skills as a pilot.

We did hear that Kennedy and Connally, who was also shot, had been taken to the same hospital. At 12:36 an all points bulletin was broadcast for an unknown gunman. This added to our anxiety. At 1:15 we heard that a Dallas policeman had been killed. I was numb with fear, because everything was falling apart.

The train was searched, almost immediately, but there was no attempt to search the car we were in. Still, the train hadn't moved and I was getting more and more apprehensive all the time. The train was searched a second time, but, as before, our car was not searched. At about 1:30 the train moved out, and I gave a deep sigh of relief, although I was still in shock over what had apparently taken place. At this point, I was convinced that the whole insane plot would surely unravel, and I could see myself spending the rest of my life in prison, or executed, for a heinous crime that I had not committed. I had committed a crime, to be sure, but not of the enormity of the one, that I would be accused of. My own experiences with our justice system, as typified by the illegal actions of the FBI, in my "joyriding" case, had left me with a terrible taste in my mouth.

I was thinking about all of this, and contemplating my dismal future, when the train came to a sudden stop. The train, which was headed north, had begun to back down the tracks, going south, but this did not concern me too much, because I thought it was merely being switched onto another track; after all, this was a switching yard. However, the train did not move and we again settled in to wait it out.

I had developed a nose bleed, and had stuffed my nose with some wadding, from one of the crates, and this was a source of irritation to me. It also made it hard for me to breathe and the shape of my nose was distorted, to a considerable extent.

Suddenly, my worst fears were realized; the boxcar door opened and we were confronted with a phalanx of offcers, with shotguns. We were ordered out of the boxcar, without any opportunity to present our credentials, or explain that we were engaged in an offcial investigation for the ATF, at the time all the excitement started.

We were ordered out of the boxcar, without any opportunity to present our credentials, or explain that we were engaged in an offcial investigation for the ATF, at the time all the excitement started. Shortly thereafter, I arrogated myself to the position of spokesman and explained our cover story to Sgt. D.V. Harkness and he ordered the army of police offcers to search the rest of the train. He then turned us over to a pair of portly offcers, who escorted us to the Dealey Plaza command post.

Harkness didn't even ask me where our vehicles were, nor did they bother to search us. He was impressed with the state-of-the-art radio transceiver, I had in my possession, which contained many crystals these shotgun-carrying yokels had never seen before.

I was carrying the radio in a bag, making it appear that it was lunch and it is strange that they made no effort to take the radio from me or, even more incredible, search and disarm us.

There were about six to eight other persons, who had been taken in previous searches, but they were separated from us.

We were marched south along the railroad tracks, to west of the Texas School Book Depository; then across Elm street and up to the corner of Houston Street to the command post, that had been set up at to the Criminal Courts Building. We were turned over to a deputy sheriff, who called Will Fritz, a man I knew we could trust, if the reports given to me were accurate. Fritz came over from the police station, said a few words to the deputy sheriff and ordered that we be turned over to the resident agent of the FBI, who was Gordon Shanklin.

During the walk, I was numb with fear but Harrelson ambled along, with a half smile on his face, as though he were enjoying the whole affair.

Montoya, on the other hand, appeared to be as terrified as I was. He tired of the leisurely pace that Harrelson was maintaining, and, actually, almost ran past him. We were never handcuffed and Marvin Wise and Billy Bass, the escorting offcers, were almost as nonchalant as Harrelson. They permitted individuals, one of whom looked very familiar to me, to pass close enough to us that I could have touched them. Bass, at one point, lagged so far behind that he might as well not been with us. Montoya was so close behind Wise that he could easily have grabbed the handgun, swinging from his hip. To me, in the circumstances, this behavior was bizarre, to say the least.

As we walked across the Plaza, our photographs were taken by several newspaper photographers. I tried to screw up my face, so I wouldn't be identified. The wadding in my nose helped to hide my identity as well. Then, I thought,"that is really crazy," since I felt that it was inevitable that "mug shots" ofus would be flashed on all the TV screens, and reprinted in newspapers, from coast to coast, the following day. As a matter of fact, our photos were taken by three separate newspaper photographers.

Gordon Shanklin had assumed the role of chief investigator, although the primary responsibility for the murder investigation rested with the Dallas Police. killing of the president was not, at that time, a federal crime and, by law, was the responsibility of the Dallas Police Department.

However, the "Feebies" always were great at asserting authority, not granted to them. They have always done it routinely in high visibility kidnapping cases.

In this case, Shanklin was acting on direct orders of J. Edgar Hoover, who erroneously concluded that a federal law had been broken. In retrospect, the arrogance of the FBI worked to our advantage, because, as inept and corrupt as the Dallas Police Department was, they still would have delved into the matter more thoroughly, and professionally, than the FBI did.

Shanklin turned us loose, at once, and there was no record kept of our "detainment." The only record of this incident is the photographic record of us crossing the plaza. While we were in the criminal courts building, we saw Eugene Brading, aka Jim Braden, who had actually been arrested. He didn't acknowledge me and I most certainly didn't acknowledge him. He was released shortly after we were cut loose.

Of all those persons arrested - eight to ten persons - records were kept of everyone, but us. It was years later before we learned the reason for this obvious dereliction of duty on the part of the FBI.

Harrelson, Montoya and I went our separate ways. Immediately upon my release, I called Morgan Brown, but was told that he had checked out at approximately 2:00. This was just about time our presence was discovered. I was informed that Dave Yaras, who had flown in from Miami the night before, had also checked out. I inquired about Jim Braden, although I knew he couldn't have, personally, checked out, because he was still in custody. It was possible that Morgan Brown or Dave Yaras had checked out for him. I was told that Mr. Braden was still a guest at the motel.

I had been informed that Phillip Twombly was in town to attend the bottlers convention, but I was not aware of what hotel he was staying in, so I could not contact him. I have no assurances that the was still in town, at that time. Oswald's description was broadcast at 12:45, within 15 minutes of the assassination; Tippit was killed just prior to 1:15 and Oswald was arrested in the Texas theater at 1:55 p.m. So Brown apparently deserted us, just about the time that one of the "pawns" was being arrested.

The other contract agents, using our Secret Service credentials, had, miraculously, escaped capture. I kept calling the motel, trying to get in touch with Jim Braden, who I knew quite well, since we had offces in the same building in Beverly Hills. Years later, we were neighbors in La Costa. Braden had been in town for a few days and I speculated that he, probably, had access to a rental car. In retrospect, considering the seriousness of the situation, it would have been more prudent to simply have taken a cab out to Red Bird Airport. It was apparent that my mind was still numb from this traumatic experience.

Yiddish Mafia Holt Lansky Rubenstein 1946 and 1952 Executive (Nixon) Action

Meyer Lansky (born Maier Suchowljansky;[1] July 4, 1902 - January 15, 1983), known as the "Mob's Accountant", was an American organized crime figure who, along with his associate Charles "Lucky" Luciano, was instrumental in the development of the National Crime Syndicate in the United States.[2][3]

A member of the Jewish mob, Lansky developed a gambling empire that stretched around the world. He was said to own points (percentages) in casinos in Las Vegas, Cuba, The Bahamas and London. Lansky additionally had a strong influence with the Italian-American Mafia and played a large role in the consolidation of the criminal underworld. The full extent of this role has been the subject of some debate, as Lansky himself denied many of the accusations against him.[4]

Despite nearly 50 years as a member/participant in organized crime,[5] Lansky was never found guilty of anything more serious than illegal gambling.[6] He has a legacy of being one of the most financially successful gangsters in American history. Before he fled Cuba, he was said to be worth an estimated $20 million (equivalent to $159 million in 2020).[7] When he died in 1983, his family learned that his estate was worth around US$57,000 (equivalent to $155,079 in 2021).[8] hauncey Holt was born in Kentucky on 23rd October, 1921. When he was 19 he joined the United States Army Airforce (USAAF). The following year he was court-martialed and sent to the U.S. penitentiary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for attacking another soldier with a Springfield rifle.

Holt was released in June 1940 but deserted from the USAF after the attack on Pearl Harbor. He eventually returned to duty but in 1942 he travelled in a car from Fort Knox to Louisville. He was arrested and charged with taking the car without permission and was sentenced to 18 months in the Industrial Reformatory at Chillicott, Ohio. On his release he found work with the Bethelem-Fairfield Shipyard Company.

After the war Holt met Peter Licavoli, a leading figure in the Mafia in Detroit. Holt was sent to Florida where he worked for Meyer Lansky as an accountant and pilot. This included several trips to Cuba where Lansky had extensive business interests. Lansky also sent Holt to worked for the International Rescue Committee (IRC). This was a Central Intelligence Agency controlled organization that had been set up to distribute funds to organizations attempting to overthrow left-wing governments. During the time Holt was also involved in producing forged documents for the CIA and the Mafia.

Holt also became involved in what later become known as Executive Action (a plan to remove unfriendly foreign leaders from power). This including a coup d'état that overthrew the Guatemalan government of Jacobo Arbenz in 1954 after he introduced land reforms and nationalized the United Fruit Company. However, the main target of this operation was Fidel Castro who had established a socialist government in Cuba.

In March I960, President Dwight Eisenhower of the United States approved a CIA plan to overthrow Castro. The plan involved a budget of $13 million to train "a paramilitary force outside Cuba for guerrilla action." The strategy was organized by Richard Bissell and Richard Helms. An estimated 400 CIA officers were employed full-time to carry out what became known as Operation Mongoose. Holt later claimed that he worked on this project with figures such as Sam Giancana, Johnny Roselli, Edward Lansdale and William Harvey.

After the failed Bay of Pigs invasion Holt worked for Meyer Lansky in California. Meyer took over the Los Angeles Stamp and Stationary Company where Holt continued to produce illegal documents and false police badges. He also worked closely with Phillip A. Twombly, a former Executive Vice President of Coca Cola for their Caribbean operations. Twombly now owned a bank in Fullerton, California, which was used to distribute CIA funds for covert operations.

Ed interjects. William Harvey and Jack Rubenstien were part of hte assasination along with the Cabell Brothers, Richard Bissle Jr and U2 and CIA air flights were, as was Chauncy Holt.

Not all stories appear true, and it is expected some will lie for themselves to escape guilt, find fame, or for various affects on thier families or others.

Returning to Cut and Pastes now.

Chauncey Holt was born in Kentucky on 23rd October, 1921. When he was 19 he joined the United States Army Airforce (USAAF). The following year he was court-martialed and sent to the U.S. penitentiary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for attacking another soldier with a Springfield rifle.

Holt was released in June 1940 but deserted from the USAF after the attack on Pearl Harbor. He eventually returned to duty but in 1942 he travelled in a car from Fort Knox to Louisville. He was arrested and charged with taking the car without permission and was sentenced to 18 months in the Industrial Reformatory at Chillicott, Ohio. On his release he found work with the Bethelem-Fairfield Shipyard Company.

After the war Holt met Peter Licavoli, a leading figure in the Mafia in Detroit. Holt was sent to Florida where he worked for Meyer Lansky as an accountant and pilot. This included several trips to Cuba where Lansky had extensive business interests. Lansky also sent Holt to worked for the International Rescue Committee (IRC). This was a Central Intelligence Agency controlled organization that had been set up to distribute funds to organizations attempting to overthrow left-wing governments. During the time Holt was also involved in producing forged documents for the CIA and the Mafia.

Holt also became involved in what later become known as Executive Action (a plan to remove unfriendly foreign leaders from power). This including a coup d'état that overthrew the Guatemalan government of Jacobo Arbenz in 1954 after he introduced land reforms and nationalized the United Fruit Company. However, the main target of this operation was Fidel Castro who had established a socialist government in Cuba.

In March I960, President Dwight Eisenhower of the United States approved a CIA plan to overthrow Castro. The plan involved a budget of $13 million to train "a paramilitary force outside Cuba for guerrilla action." The strategy was organized by Richard Bissell and Richard Helms. An estimated 400 CIA officers were employed full-time to carry out what became known as Operation Mongoose. Holt later claimed that he worked on this project with figures such as Sam Giancana, Johnny Roselli, Edward Lansdale and William Harvey.

After the failed Bay of Pigs invasion Holt worked for Meyer Lansky in California. Meyer took over the Los Angeles Stamp and Stationary Company where Holt continued to produce illegal documents and false police badges. He also worked closely with Phillip A. Twombly, a former Executive Vice President of Coca Cola for their Caribbean operations. Twombly now owned a bank in Fullerton, California, which was used to distribute CIA funds for covert operations.

In 1963 Holt claims he received instructions from Phillip A. Twombly to provide false ID documents for Lee Harvey Oswald. These documents (in the names of Lee Harvey Oswald and Alek Hiddell) were delivered by a man called George Reynolds. In August, 1963, Twombly asked Holt to travel to New Orleans, where he met Oswald and Carlos Bringuier.

Holt later claimed he was went to Dallas in November, 1963, with Charlie Nicoletti, James Canty and Leo Moceri. In Dallas he passed on forged documents and guns (with silencers) to Charles Harrelson and Charles Rogers (Richard Montoya). Holt was told that "an incident was going to be created which could be laid at the door of pro-Castro Cubans. The word attempted assassination was never used. We assumed that from all this light loaded ammunition that maybe somebody was going to try to take a shot from somewhere, probably the Dal-Tex building, or one of the buildings around there. But at no time was it ever intimidated to us that an assassination or attempted assassination on Kennedy."

When the Kennedy motorcade reached the Dealey Plaza Holt was in the parking lot behind the Grassy Knoll. After the shooting took place Holt went to hide in a railroad car. He was joined by Charles Harrelson and Charles Rogers. However, soon afterwards, Dallas police officers entered the railroad car and arrested all three men. The three men along with Jim Brading were interviewed by Gordon Shanklin of the FBI and then released.

In October, 1991, Holt confessed to John Craig, Phillip Rogers and Gary Shaw about his role in the assassination of John F. Kennedy. Holt's story was undermined in 1992 when the Dallas Police Department revealed that the three tramps were Gus Abrams, John F. Gedney and Harold Doyle. Ray and Mary LaFontaine carried out their own research into this claim. They traced Doyle and Gedley who confirmed they were two of the tramps in the photograph. Gus Abrams was dead but his sister identified him as the third tramp in the photograph.

Peter Licavoli was born on 7th June, 1902. His parents were from Sicily. The family settled in St. Louis. He eventually became involved in organized crime and became a significant figure in supplying illegal alcohol. In 1932 he was sentenced to two years in prison for bribing a federal agent.

Licavoli was rumoured to have taken part in the St. Valentine's Day Massacre. An effective contract killer, in 1935 Licavoli is believed to have killed Jerry Buckly, a journalist investigating organized crime. Other victims included Milton Jones from St. Louis and Jackie Kennedy, a leading crime figure in Toledo. Licavoli moved to Detroit and supplied men to Henry Ford to help him break strikes during the 1930s.

After the Second World War Licavoli was one of the five ruling Dons of Detroit. Between them they controlled several casinos, racetracks and hotels. He also owned Grace Ranch where he bred racehorses.

Chauncey Holt claimed that Licavoli was involved in organizing the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Holt suggest that the gunman, including Charlie Nicoletti met at Licavoli's Grace Ranch on the way to Dallas.

In 1976 Licavoli was convicted of buying a stolen 16th century painting. He eventually served a 13 month sentence for the crime.

Peter Licavoli died of a heart attack in Tucson, Arizona on 11th January, 1984.

Sam Giancana

Giancana soon left the 42 Gang behind to become a driver for Capone's alcohol smuggling operation.

He served as a getaway driver for Capone and his associates "Machine Gun" McGurn and Tony "Big Tuna" Accardo. According to a 1975 obituary for Giancana in New York Magazine, those two mobsters likely played major roles in Capone's infamous St. Valentine's Day Massacre. https://allthatsinteresting.com/sam-giancana

On February 14, 1929, seven members of Chicago's North Side Gang were killed in the St. Valentine's Day Massacre - and the prime suspect was Al Capone.

Around 10:30 a.m. on Feb. 14, 1929, four men approached Moran's warehouse at 2122 North Clark Street. Two were dressed as police officers. The other two looked like well-dressed civilians, in suits and ties, while the driver wore an expensive chinchilla and a gray fedora. They were there on business - but not the kind of business that usually unfolded in broad daylight.

The six men inside the warehouse were affiliated with gang leader George "Bugs" Moran. One of them, Reinhardt Schwimmer, wasn't really a gang member - he was an optometrist - but liked the appeal of having underworld friends. The others were a mix of killers, embezzlers, and robbers - as well as a German Shepherd named Highball. All of them answered to Moran, and none of them expected anything out of the ordinary on that cold February morning.

Outside, the four unidentified men had been waiting for a signal. When Albert Weinshank, a nightclub owner who they may have mistaken for Moran himself, entered the building, the four men got the signal to move in. With that, the St. Valentine's Day Massacre was underway.

No one knows exactly what happened in the warehouse. Were Moran's men alarmed? Did they shrug it off as a police raid? In any case, they did what they were told: The seven men lined up against the wall, their backs to the intruders. Then the strangers raised their guns - Thompson submachine guns, better known as Tommy guns, and a 12-gauge shotgun - and opened fire.

Bullets sprayed across the line of Moran's men, spattering blood, breaking bone, and punching into the brick wall behind them. Meanwhile, Highball howled - but was spared from the bullets and was later found by police alive, tied to a car bumper nearby. https://allthatsinteresting.com/st-valentines-day-massacre
